83 RESIGN FROM UNION

Board Hears Of Efforts Of Labor Leaders To Sway Political Opinion

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29—The house investigation of the CIO Political Action Committee's alleged "political dictation" swung to another segment of the labor front today as a bloc of union members in Chicago revolted against the CIO program.

The Un-American activities investigating subcommittee called Dock J. Williams, of Chicago, deposed former president of Local 25, CIO-United Packinghouse Workers, as its third witness to buttress charges of communist domination in the CIO.

His appearance follows testimony by two employees of the Chicago Flexible Shaft Company, who declared that Communist leadership had taken over their local CIO-United Electrical Workers union. One of the men, Harry Morgan, chief steward in the shop, said he was ousted for fighting the CIO Political Action Program. The other, Elmer H. Churchill, testified that he resigned in protest.

Resigns From Union

Following this example, 83 employees of the same Chicago company yesterday resigned from the union and threatened an injunction suit to halt further deduction of CIO dues and to recover dues already paid.

Their action centered national attention on the house investigation and on the CIO's "political education" program, already an issue of the presidential campaign.

Williams, Negro head of the Packinghouse Union, was expected to tell the subcommittee headed by Rep. Costello (D) Cal., that he, too, was fired from his post for refusing to support the Political Action Committee program and fund raising campaign.

Morgan testified that he has filed suit against the Electrical (Continued on Page Two)

Reconversion Picture Viewed With High Note Of Confidence By Ford

DETROIT, Sept. 29—Henry Ford II viewed the reconversion picture today with a high note of confidence which gave promise of the Ford company being among the first, if not ahead of the field, with new cars for the post-war market.

In the course of a two-day seminar on reconversion problems of the automobile industry, Ford disclosed that the company already has received advance reports as to the type and extent of its cutbacks in war production upon V-E day.

The youthful motor car executive indicated that the company's ordinance contracts, already heavily curtailed, probably will be entirely cut back, and production of B-24 bombers and other items considerably reduced. Tanks and gun mounts previously were stopped.

Ford also reported that the company will be able to start production of cars again with its present equipment. He said few machine tools would be needed to make a beginning, although they (Continued on Page Two)

Refuting rumors that Axis leaders planned to seek safety in the Argentine after the collapse of Germany, the Argentine government published a note handed to the British foreign office on September 26 by Argentine ambassador to Britain, Miguel Angel Carrano.

The note said that the impossibility of war criminals crossing wide stretches of United Nations controlled ocean between Europe and the Argentine was apparent, and added that the Argentine government reaffirmed previous declarations that no persons named as Axis war criminals would be admitted to Argentina.

The claim that Axis war criminals would not be allowed to gain control of any Argentinian property, or monies transferred to the Argentine was advanced in Carrano's note which asked that the British foreign office give equal weight to the Argentine declaration as to the declarations of other neutral countries nearer to Axis territory.

WALLACE ASKS EASING OF TAX ON BUSINESS

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 29—Vice President Henry Wallace today left a plea for free enterprise in the immediate post-war era in order to facilitate nationwide employment.

"There must be such modification of the taxation system as will get private industry really going," he declared in a speech last night. Wallace asked for the reelection of President Roosevelt, but warned that measures should be taken to relieve business of some of the burdens of the excess profits tax.

Yank Losses In Bruising Raid Set At 10 Planes And Eight Men

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 29—The road back to Bataan and Corregidor was strewn with the wreckage of many more Japanese ships and planes today following a third smashing assault at the heart of enemy power in the central Philippines by United States carrier planes.

Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet warbirds destroyed or damaged at least 65 Japanese ships and demolished 36 planes during a blistering third strike executed Saturday in the Bisayas group of islands, in the geographic center of the Philippine archipelago.

In addition, 20 to 30 small boats were wrecked or damaged, boosting to 95 the probable total toll of surface ships bagged by the raiders from Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carriers operating with Halsey's Third Fleet.

Nip Planes Downed

Only seven enemy planes either managed or dared to get into the air while the American bombers unleashed a torrent of bombs on Jap airfields on Cebu, Leyte, Mactan and Southern Luzon and attacked all shipping in the region.

All seven of the Jap interceptors were blasted out of the sky and 29 more were wrecked on the ground, bringing to 1,014 the number of enemy planes destroyed in devastating carrier plane attacks on the Philippines which began September 8.

Four Japanese war vessels, including one destroyer and three destroyer-escorts, were sunk in the latest attack Saturday and two additional destroyer escorts were damaged.

HERRON SANE, SAY ALIENISTS; TO STAND TRIAL

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 29—Declared sane by alienists, Harry H. Herron, 25, will go on trial next Monday for the second-degree murder of his 23-months old niece, Ardella May Brobst.

Herron, without counsel at the present since his court-appointed attorney withdrew from the case, was declared by the alienists to be "responsible for his act, both now and at the time of the alleged crime."

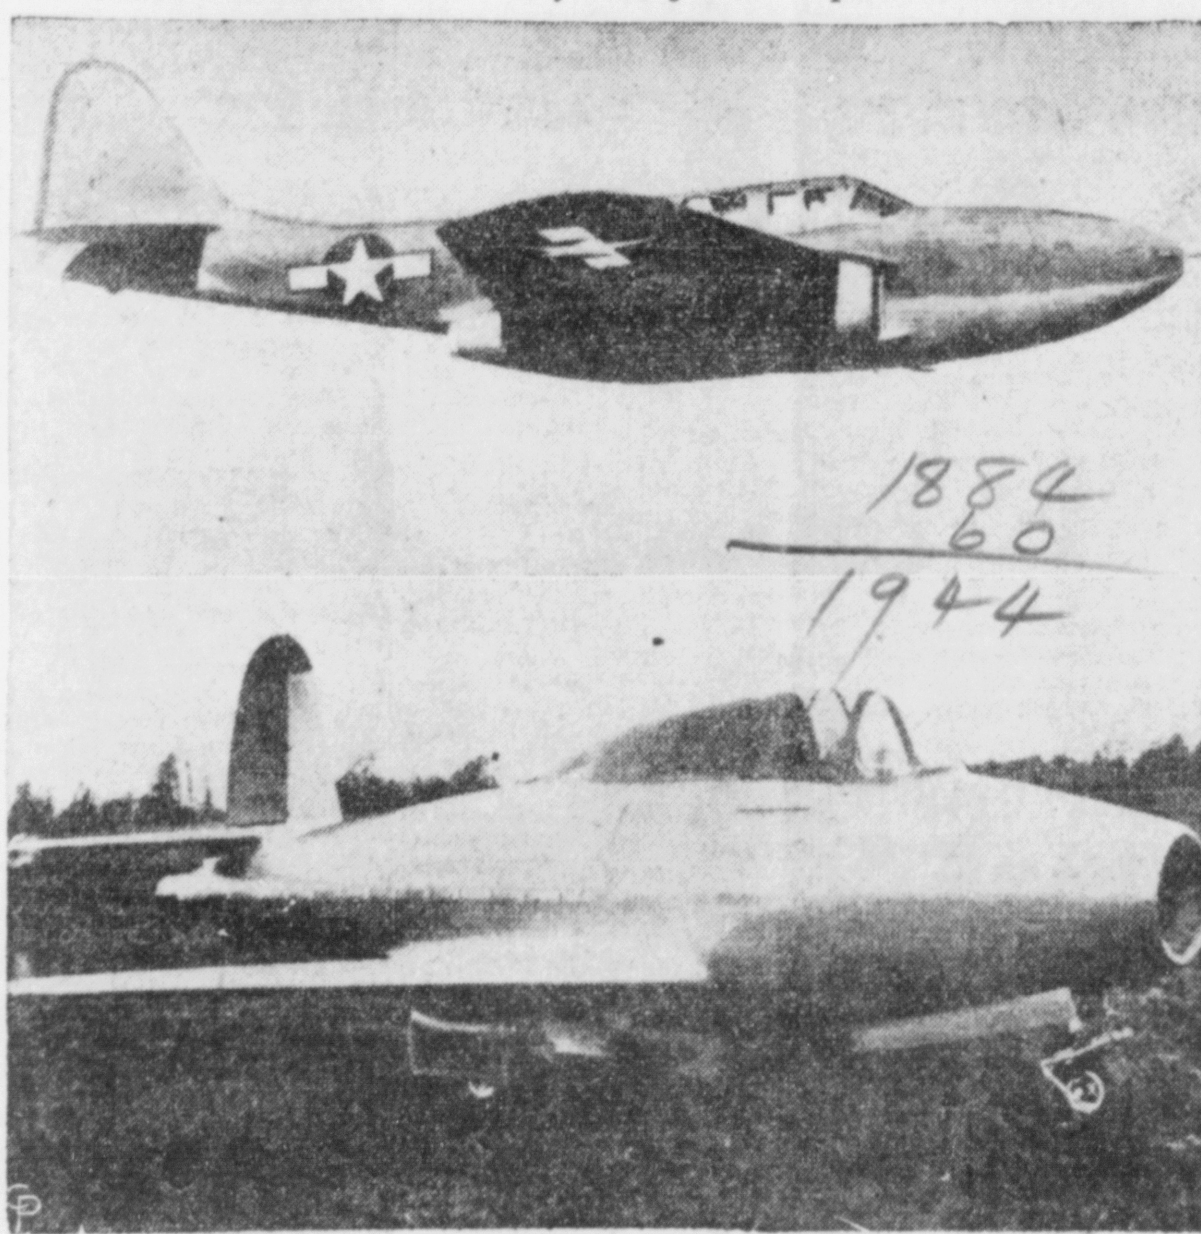

Herron confessed to police that he threw a shoe at Ardella May Sept. 11 and then spanked her at the home the two families shared. The child died of a ruptured liver and a brain hemorrhage.

EX-AMBASSADOR FACES CLAIM OF RENT GOUGING

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Great Britain, today was involved in a commercial rent hearing in which he was accused of "rent gouging."

During an investigation sponsored by a committee of the New York city council, counsel for two tenants of a New York department store building acquired by Kennedy charged that the rents were boosted to almost double when the former ambassador gained control of the property. One said his client's rent was increased from $42,500 a year to $73,000 and the other claimed that an attempt was made to boost charges from $15,000 to $30,000.

Dr. Koo Sees No Obstacle To Agreement On Security, Peace Organization

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29—Dr. Wellington Koo, chief of the Chinese delegation to the Dumbarton Oaks conference, said today the Chinese plan was closely similar to the British and American plans, and he saw no obstacle to agreement on an international peace and security organization.

Koo made this statement just before the opening of the Chinese phase of the conference today.

Following a plenary session yesterday of the Russian, British and American delegates, the Russians withdrew and the Chinese entered the conference for the first time.

Koo acknowledged that this procedure, which the Russians had insisted on, has retarded the speed of action, but he expected that (Continued on Page Two)

CITY WETTEST TOWN IN OHIO DURING AUGUST

Circleville was the wettest spot in the state during the last few days of August.

Reports received by official weather observer Roy Hawkes Friday revealed that more rain fell in Circleville than any place else in Ohio.

During the month a total of 8.18 inches of precipitation was recorded, normal rainfall for the month being 4.54 inches. Second highest point reported was from a northern Ohio station which had 4.41 inches of rain in August.

Most of the rain which fell during August came in the last few days of the month, breaking a prolonged drought which caused thousands of dollars damage to Pickaway county crops.

The official mercury stood at 56 Friday morning following a high of 69 recorded Thursday. Precipitation totaled .35 inch. Scioto river stage was 2.75 feet Friday.

AIMEE DEATH PROBE RESUMED BY SCIENTISTS

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 29—Investigation into the death of Aimee Semple McPherson resumed today as contents of the stomach of the famed evangelist were submitted to laboratory analysis.

Following Mrs. McPherson's death in an Oakland hotel Wednesday morning, an autopsy was performed by two Oakland surgeons, but officials still reported death due to "undetermined origin" and ordered extensive laboratory tests to attempt to discover whether or not she died of an overdose of sleeping capsules.

Two physicians who were summoned to Mrs. McPherson's bedside Wednesday morning by her son, Rolf, attributed her sudden death to a heart attack, possibly induced by a dose of sedative, a quantity of which was found in her traveling kit.

The state board of pharmacy stepped officially into the investigation when Joseph Foley, board secretary, announced the board was interested in the source of the capsules.

"The drug is a hypnotic sedative which requires a doctor's prescription," Foley said. "The bottle in which Aimee McPherson carried her supply of these capsules shows no indication of its origin—neither any prescription nor any indication of where she obtained them."

"Two capsules of this stuff," he added, "are adequate to 'knock out' a normal person. We want to know where Mrs. McPherson got her supply and how much of it she took."

RUSS IRKED BY TALK OF SOFT PEACE FOR HUNS

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—Russian determination to punish all German war criminals and avoid the possibility of a soft peace was emphasized today in two broadcasts by the Moscow radio.

The broadcasts quoted the official Russian paper "Izvestia" as attacking what it called "uninvited advisers" in Britain for alleged advocacy of a soft peace for Germany.

They also quoted Russian author Ilya Ehrenburg, writing in the Russian army paper "Red Star," as saying that the Soviets were determined to punish all German war criminals whether they were members of the Nazi party or not.

Wage Dissatisfaction In Alarming Increase, WLB Advised

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29—Appearing in labor's drive to smash the "Little Steel" wage formula, R. J. In a 5,000-word statement, Thomas declared that the union has held to its no-strike pledge and other commitments to the nation and the armed forces, but added: "That solid fact must not be allowed to conceal the mounting sense of frustration among the men and women of our war production lines."

Thomas' statement was in line with those of other affiliated CIO and AFL unions who appealed to the WLB to break the Little Steel (Continued on Page Two)

BROWDER SAYS DEWEY THREAT TO WORLD PEACE

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—The communist party line on the presidential election took shape today in bitter opposition to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey on the claim that a GOP victory would foment a "civil war" in Europe.

The communist leader, Earl Browder, whose wife has been the subject of a deportation controversy, came out in support of the New Deal and President Roosevelt.

He told a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden that Governor Dewey's election would be "an American invitation to Europe to plunge immediately or soon into the most devastating civil war."

Browder charged that Dewey's election would serve as a warning to Soviet Russia that America would stop collaborating with the USSR as soon as possible.

"This, he maintained, would end proposed plans for post-war world security organizations."

On the other hand, Browder claimed that a Roosevelt victory would produce a better world.

Reds Smash Through Nazi Defense Systems Near Latvian Capital

By International News Service
American armies striking at the Germans along a 130-mile front from Luxembourg to the Belfort Pass in France were reported by the Nazis today to have breached German lines on both sides of the road leading to Belfort and Montbéliard.

Word that breaches had been smashed into German positions on the approaches to the vital Belfort Gap from the Nazi Transocean news agency at the same time headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced that American and French forces of the Sixth Army group had advanced on several sectors and won towns on the northeast approaches to the Belfort Pass.

A Paris radio report said that the Americans had broken through the Siegfried line at a new point 15 miles southeast of Aachen.

An official headquarters spokesman said that with the Sixth Army group advance the Germans were showing signs of corresponding aggressiveness.

Strong Resistance

On the approaches to Belfort the towns of Bult and Destord were captured against strong artillery and mortar resistance. The Allies captured Docelles, eight miles due east of Epinal and several villages between Tendon and St. Anne.

The Germans tried an unsuccessful strong counter-attack at Cleure, four miles northeast of Rupt and southeast of Remiremont where the enemy is well dug in.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's Army maintained positions in the Moselle valley, where they now are well dug in, and repulsed several counter-attacks in the Thill area, smashing 82 Hun tanks in 24 hours. Southeast of Thillot an advance of up to five miles was scored, with the Allies reaching (Continued on Page Two)

NINE DIE AND 75 INJURED IN TRAIN COLLISION

MISSOURI VALLEY, Ia., Sept. 29—Nine persons were killed and more than 75 injured, many seriously, when a fast Chicago and Northwestern railroad freight train sideswiped a passenger train in the Northwestern yards on the outskirts of Missouri Valley last night.

The passenger train of nine cars enroute from Sioux City, Ia., to Omaha, Neb., was pulling through the yards when the "Calumet," a meat train from Omaha to Chicago, plunged into the side of the fifth coach back of the engine, turning over five coaches that were loaded with passengers, mostly service men.

The injured were brought to Council Bluffs, Ia., and Omaha by special train and by ambulances from Fort Crook and nearby towns.

Rescue work was started immediately following the crash by members of the armed forces. They broke into the twisted wreckage of the steel cars and started carrying out the dead and injured.

The known civilian dead included: Ben White, Council Bluffs, Ia.; Edward Mayer, Ashland, Neb.; Paul G. Storass, 24, Luverne, Minn.; Mrs. Ben White of Council Bluffs; the 18-month-old daughter of Mrs. Agnes Steinhoben of Hull, Ia.; and Mrs. Ida McLarnin of Mo-ville, Ia.

Hun Attacks Halted

The Allies, a headquarters spokesman said, completely occupied the forest of Mont De Valles and pushed east of Lure. The Germans heavily counter-attacked with tanks and artillery near Eloult, but were repulsed and the Americans moved forward to occupy Clargouttes, 11 miles west of Belfort.

Weather in the Belfort area was described at headquarters as extremely bad. It was raining, and snow covered high ground.

At the northern end of the Allied battle line troops of the British Second Army operating east of the Eidenhoven-Nijmegen road slowly pushed the Germans back to clear the area along the Maas (Meuse) river near the German frontier. Fighting was in progress east of the Nijmegen-Arnhem road.

The British met strong German defenses five miles west of Veghel and in the vicinity of Schijndel.

In the action from southeast Luxembourg to the Epinal-Belfort area the Germans were driven from several towns, including Remich, in Luxembourg 20 miles southwest of Trier.

Northeast of Ponta Mousson, on the Third Army front, the Germans were driven from Port-Sur-Selle.

East of Ponta Mousson, the Nazi DNB agency said, the Americans went over to a general attack on a broad front.

Bombers Active

American bombers roared out from British bases to cross the channel in sorties aimed at German installations before attacking ground troops at the Siegfried line. Other formations swept across the English coast toward the ports of Dunkerque and Calais where Nazi garrisons held out against vigorous ground action.

The British radio reported that Nazi forces in Calais had asked for an armistice, but that fighting had continued in the port beyond the time set by the Allies for Nazi surrender.

In the east, Soviet armies driving toward Riga as the Nazi-held Latvian capital tottered smashed through German defense systems in bloody fighting. Converging Russian armies neared the city as the climax of the swift campaign to smash German troops in the Baltic states drew closer.

Close on Hungary

Far to the south, Russian forces forming the northern prong of a huge pincer closing inexorably on Hungary, last Axis satellite in the war, slashed across the Czechoslovak border from Southern Poland, driving four miles into Czech territory to seize the important rail town of Vydran.

Russian naval aircraft were revealed to have destroyed five German self-propelled barges and 26 motor boats in a raid on the Northern Norway port of Vadsoe. The attack accounted for 13 German planes and destroyed a German ammunition dump.

On the Italian front American Fifth Army forces drove ahead through German defenses along the vital Florence-Bologna road after seizing important strategic heights from German hands. Far-

Churchill said he also refused to cooperate in this work.

In the Southwest Pacific, American planes continued their relentless smashing of Jap power from the Philippines to the Solomons, with naval patrol planes sinking a 10,000 ton transport in the Sulu archipelago and damaging a 6,000 ton craft.

Heavy neutralization raids were leveled at the Celebes, Cram, the Halmaheras and Moluccas, while smaller aerial attacks continued to harry Jap positions farther west.

urday's strikes were: One destroyer, one troop transport, three large cargo ships, three large oil tankers, six medium cargo ships, five small cargo ships, three destroyer escorts.

Many Craft Damaged

Jap ships damaged, including more than one probably sunk, were: Two large oil tankers, one large cargo ship, one medium oil tanker, 15 medium cargo ships; one small transport, 21 small cargo ships, two destroyer escorts.

American losses in Saturday's bruising raid were 10 aircraft, with five pilots and three crewmen listed as missing.

A compilation of figures released by Pacific fleet headquarters since the Halsey-Mitscher team first struck the Southern Philippines Sept. 8 raised enemy losses to staggering proportions and indicated that the backbone of Japanese aerial and shipping strength in the islands may well be broken.

Results from Saturday's raid raised the toll exacted from the enemy in the Philippines to 144 ships sunk, 180 damaged, and 1,014 planes destroyed in addition to 200 small surface craft sunk or damaged.

Total American losses from the same operations were: 42 pilots, 23 crewmen and 61 planes. Even in previous raids when the Japs sent swarms of interceptors into the air to meet the American threat, not a single vessel of the United States fleet was damaged and Saturday the virtually nominal air resistance was speedily wiped out.

Tankers Sunk

Headquarters said that the two enemy fleet tankers were sunk at Coron bay where carrier bombers and fighters made "a particularly heavy strike."

Coron bay lies between Busuanga and Culuhan islands in the Western Philippines.

The American carrier warbirds inflicted heavy damage on enemy shore installations in Saturday's sweeping raids. A warehouse and a marine railway at Iloilo in Southern Panay were left in flames and at Bacolod in the northern part of Negros island, piers and barracks were bombed and strafed.

Buildings and an airfield at Saravias, also in the northern part of Negros, were struck by the American planes. Piers and warehouses at Cebu island were heavily damaged at Mactan, east of Cebu, oil refining facilities and the airfield were bombed.

At Legaspi in southern Luzon, only a few hundred miles southeast of Manila, a number of partly concealed aircraft were bombed and strafed.

Oil storage facilities and barracks were left in flames near Ormoc on Leyte island.

Saturday's strike was a continuation of the lethal campaign launched Sept. 8 in about the same area and designed to neutralize the Philippines for Gen. Douglas MacArthur's anticipated invasion move from the south.

formula and vigorously denounced the national wage stabilization program as a gross discrimination against workingmen.

The UAW chief and other union representatives appeared in support of demands by the CUI's United Steel Workers urging WLB to recommend a 17 cent wage increase in the steel industry which would in effect breach the Little Steel plan limiting pay boosts to 15 percent of January 1, 1941 levels.

Appearance of the affiliated groups marked organized labor's closing drive in the current series of board hearings to secure a general revision of the government "hold-the-line" wage program and came as President Roosevelt summoned his labor cabinet for a conference which may bring clarification of the administration's views on wage stabilization.

The labor cabinet is a six-man group of AFL and CIO officials headed by Federation President William Green and CIO Chief Philip Murray.

Unions Get Setback

Organized labor received a setback before the conference and today's WLB hearings when the board last night rejected by an 8-4 vote a joint AFL-CIO resolution which would have committed the agency to recommend to the President by October 16 any changes in wage stabilization policies.

Highlighting the argument of Thomas and the other union representatives was the contention that cost-of-living has increased 45.3 percent since January 1, 1941 while wages have been restricted by the 15 percent limitation.

Thomas told the WLB that when he said workers are "impatient and dissatisfied, I am guilty of understating the case."

"Our recent convention saw a very strenuous move to revoke labor's no-strike pledge," he said. "Those who sought to carry through this dangerous policy argued simply that the National War Labor Board was no longer an effective channel for the settlement of labor disputes or for the removal of economic inequities."

"That such a lack of confidence in the board exists among rank and file workers is a fact of which cognizance must be taken. It can be neglected only at the peril of the whole war effort."

He declared that further delay and procrastination in determination of the basic issue of wage stabilization policy—high wages—raised in the General Motors, United Steel and other cases before the board, "will be nothing short of disastrous."

OAKS PACT WINS CHINA PRAISE

any differences which now arise between the Chinese and Russian plans might be settled outside the conference by diplomatic exchange.

Keen Peace Interest

The veteran diplomat, who has served as Chinese ambassador to Washington and London, declared: "China has suffered war longer than other countries, and is deeply interested in international cooperation to maintain peace. It is a traditional policy with China."

He made it clear that the Chinese delegation enters the conversations not in a mood to find fault with what the other delegations have accomplished, but, he said, "with a determination to make a success of the entire undertaking."

Having studied in advance the American and British plans for the new League of Nations, Koo said: "There is nothing in these plans which we cannot subscribe to. The only differences between them and the Chinese plan are a matter of degree. We wish to strengthen certain points, and make sure that the mistakes of the old League shall be eliminated."

Suggests Change

For example, the Chinese plan carries a specific and detailed definition of aggression which is not contained in the other plans. Koo explained: "Potential aggressors should be put on notice in advance as to what acts will be regarded as offensive to international order."

Most significant of the disclosures made by the Chinese statesman was the fact that China takes the same view with Britain and the United States—as opposed to Russia—on the question of the right of a party involved in a controversy to vote in the council on that issue.

This is the problem which has split the three powers in the opening phase of the conversations. The British and American view was that when the council of the new organization takes action on a controversy involving a member of the council, that member should be barred from voting.

Russians Stand Firm

The Russians, on the other hand, insisted that the member involved should have the right to vote.

Reconversion Picture Viewed With High Note Of Confidence By Ford

will be necessary for expanded output. Ford normally operates its own tool plant.

Other leading members of the automobile manufacturing industry have labeled machine tools as one of the most critical of the reconversion problems, demanding an over-riding priority for procurement of such equipment ahead of other civilian producers.

Young Ford indicated that if V-E Day came tomorrow, it might take six to eight months for the company to turn out its first car, since there will be considerable plant conversion to be done. With complete preparedness, he said the time could be cut to three or four months.

The huge Ford Willow Run plant, where the production schedule on the big Liberators tapers off until December, may produce tractors and farm equipment in the post-war era. The elder Ford is considering such a possibility.

In general, the automotive industry advanced this program for ironing out the bottlenecks of reconversion:

1. Priority over other civilian production in the procurement of machine tools.

2. Assistance to machine tool companies in filling such orders.

MORE ROBOTS

LONDON, Sept. 29—The southern counties of England, including the London area, felt the impact of German flying bombs shortly before dawn today.

British night fighters destroyed two Nazi Heinkel 111 planes which had launched flying bombs against England from over the North Sea during the night.

This is the issue which remained unsettled at the end of the three-power talks, thus making what President Roosevelt described as a 90 per cent agreement instead of 100 per cent.

Koo revealed today that China would exclude such a member from voting. Thus China, Britain and the United States will be lined up against Russia on this important question.

Asked what role France should play in the new League, the ambassador said his government favored the inclusion of France as a permanent member of the council, on a par with the Big Four—Britain, Russia, the United States and China.

"France," said Dr. Koo, "has a rich culture and a tradition as a great European power."

This view seemed to make certain the place of France among the great powers in the new international organization.

Good Pastures Profitable

Good pastures conserve soil and water, reduce livestock production costs, and when operated in rotation with cultivated crops result in larger crop yields, says the War Food Administration. Pasture establishment and improvement practices become especially important in meeting wartime food and fiber needs. Assistance in carrying out such practices is available to American farmers in most States under the conservation program administered by the Agricultural Adjustment Agency.

Soil is protected in several ways by productive pastures, WFA points out. Excellent insurance against erosion and loss of moisture is provided by the thick sod or cover while it is being grazed, and when turned under it acts to reduce erosion losses while the land is being tilled. The sod also makes the soil more productive when it is broken to grow crops in rotation. Higher carrying capacity of good pasture increases the farmer's income by making supplemental feed from cultivated land less necessary. In addition, much less labor, power, equipment, seed, and fertilizer is required to operate land in grass and legumes than in cultivated crops.

Good pasture practices include re-seeding of depleted land and planting of new pasture, contouring, weed control by mowing or clipping, application of lime and phosphate, stock water developments, and a season-long system for preventing overgrazing. When plowing and reseeded are necessary, or when new land is being opened up for seeding to pasture, says WFA, fertilizer and lime should be applied before the seed is sown. In most areas, poor pastures can be renovated by disking, liming, fertilizing, and seeding more productive grasses and legumes.

Legumes return nitrogen to the pastureland, and under average conditions they should form about one-third of the planting. Government studies show, Mixtures of grasses and legumes produce one-third to one-half more pasture feed than grasses alone. In addition, it is pointed out, reseeded a pasture with legumes and supplementary grasses aids in erosion control by filling in bare spots in the turf, and tends to lengthen the pasture season.

Conditions under which pasture grows vary not only from State to State and county to county, but even from farm to farm and field to field. The kinds and amounts of fertilizer, lime, and seed that should be used, and the farming methods best suited to the land, vary in the same manner, says WFA.

Artificial reseeded of pasture and range land under the Agricultural Conservation Program has been increased nearly fifty-fold since 1936, according to annual reports. In 1942, the last year for which complete figures are available, 9,923,000 pounds of seed were used for reseeded, compared with 195,000 pounds in the earlier year.

RATS!

JERSEY CITY—Jersey City will have to deal with its own rat problem this year unassisted by the county, according to a ruling by the Hudson County Board of Freeholders. What's more the situation will have to be dealt with in a hurry because those rats on the city dumps are becoming a public nuisance, even if they don't bother Mayor Frank Hague who lives a long block away on the twelfth floor.

COLLETT APPEAL TO BE HEARD ON OCTOBER 10

October 10 has been set as the date when the second district court of appeals will hear arguments in Washington C. H. for a new trial of James W. Collett, convicted of the triple murder of the Elmer McCoy family last Thanksgiving evening.

Collett claims 10 instances of alleged error in his appeal, including the charge a confession he made in Toledo under a lie-detector was obtained under duress.

If no exceptions to the trial are found the appellate court will set a date for Collett's execution. If errors alleged are sustained the court will set a new trial date.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Did you hear that Tom is going to be inducted into the Army next week, Judge?"
"Yes, Frank told me this morning down at the barber shop. Our town's got a lot of men in the service now, Jim. In fact, all towns have. I was just reading in the paper where there are more than 10,000,000 men away from their homes in the armed forces. And, from all reports, they're doing a grand job bringing victory closer every day."
"We folks at home have a mighty big obligation to those 10,000,000 fighting men. We've got to produce the food to keep them well fed. We've got to keep them supplied with the ammunition and equipment they need to finish their job. We've got to help the Government pay for all these supplies our men need by buying more and more War Bonds. We'll have another big chance to do that by helping to put the next War Loan drive over the top, Jim."
"And, in addition, we must be sure that, while they're away and can't express their opinions, we don't go voting on and deciding any things that will displease them when they come back."

JOHN KIRKWOOD TELLS OF LIFE ON WAR FRONT

Rotarians Friday had a clearer picture of the problems facing the Allied nation's leaders who are trying to restore order in Italy and the work of the American Red Cross in the war areas.

Speaker at the Thursday meeting in Pickaway Arms was John Kirkwood, Red Cross field director who had served 18 months in the Mediterranean theatre of war in Africa, Sicily and Italy. Before going overseas he was athletic coach at Clarksburg high school in Ross county.

Mr. Kirkwood was stationed with the 15th airforce and the 12th Air Force. His work consisted mainly of seeing that soldiers on the front lines and fox holes were supplied with something special to eat. He said that when an Army unit occupies a town the Red Cross sets up club houses where men dance or just lounge and also establish snack bars. Mobile units distribute doughnuts and other food to men at the front, even in foxholes, he said.

In Italy the Allied leaders are having trouble reopening schools because of the seeds of Fascism spread through the educational system under Mussolini's regime. All the textbooks formerly used teach fascism and cannot now be used. The hundreds of children who roam the streets have been taught Fascism and the big problem of undoing this teaching is a headache to the new government. He said the people of Italy greatly admire Mayor LaGuardia of New York and want him as one of the advisors to the new government.

Soldier visitors at the meeting were: Lt. C. Dee Early, stationed with the signal corps at Dayton; Cpl. Sam Johnson, Ft. Sill, Okla.; Donald Goodchild, aviation cadet enroute to Kansas City; Tech. Sgt. Clarence Thomas, stationed in New Mexico.

TO CITY VOTERS

The letter written to you by the "Circuiter" of the Herald on September 22 carries sound advice. "Because of the importance of the issue (water plant purchase) everyone should acquaint himself with all the facts so as to vote intelligently. Be sure that you are informed."

This is the advice we have been giving City Administrations for several years while the high pressure BOND SALESMEN have been camping in, on and around Circleville. Unfortunately these BOND SALESMEN only furnish enough information to make their deal, and frequently this information is not complete but is borderline and biased. Right at the beginning we have an example of their lack of proper advice. This special election will cost Circleville taxpayers approximately $1000. Why did not the BOND SALESMEN suggest that the issue be put up to the voters in the first place, which could have been done at a regular election and save this great unnecessary expense? Of course the answer is obvious. If they can make their deal through contacts with a few individuals why run the chance of defeat at the polls by the hundreds of citizens—taxpayers—water users who are the ones who really have to foot the bills?

We sincerely hope that during the next two months the promoters of this plan will make public the conclusive evidence that prompted them to make this deal without securing the approval of the citizens. It is their duty to sell the plan to the already over-tax-burdened public. We pledge here and now to assume the responsibility of seeing to it that the facts are completely and fairly set forth if such a selling job is undertaken.

OPEN LETTERS

TO MY PEOPLE

FRIENDS: You all know Dr. Eddie Montgomery who gave up his local practice to go into uniform. He is out in the Pacific helping save the lives of American boys, some of whom are from Pickaway county. Doc. has written a letter to Bob Brehmer. Here are quotes from it:

"That Memorial Lake project for Pickaway county sounds like a fine thing. I have talked to several of the county boys and all of them express hope that it is successful. For my part, I would like to see the thing go through, too. That is one post-war plan that does not sound as though it came from an opium den."

"From your remarks in Rotary Flashes (weekly bulletin of the Circleville Rotary club) I assume that people have to be jogged in their memories to go to the blood bank. Well, if some of those were in the position of a hell of a lot of Americans whose life depend on plasma at any time they wouldn't be so damned forgetful. The other day I heard one man say, 'There is only one class of people I hate worse than the Japs—that's American slackers, people who actually have to be begged to buy bonds on which they draw interest.' Out here it makes one bitter."

Food for thought there, eh?

CIRCUITEER

TO C. A. C. OWNERS

GENTLEMEN: We all are appreciative of your recreation center project and are pleased that the WPB has given you the go ahead sign on construction. War-time recreation in Circleville is limited and gasoline restrictions prohibit travel in search of diversion. You soon should join our local theatres in providing wholesome entertainment. Our theatres are doing a grand job, presenting the very latest and best in pictures, and the war-time roles they are playing and will continue to play are understood, and applauded by everyone. Any undertaking that has its aim clean diversion for the public merits the highest consideration on the part of all.

WASHINGTON Report

Colonies Stumbling Block
To Post-War Settlements

British, French Hope to Retain Overseas Control

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—One of the hitches in the peace planning is the determination of both France and Great Britain to keep the colonies they had before the war.

France wants to hold on to Indo-China, Java, New Caledonia and the rest. Russia and the United States are not too pleased with this ambition.

However, Britain supports France in her wish. In fact, Britain insists that France shall have all of her insular and colonial possessions restored to her.

There are two reasons for Britain's support of France. Britain wishes to hold on to her own colonies after the war. Perhaps more important is the second reason for Britain's support of France's peace demand.

Britain is planning a post-war alliance with France—something on the order of a Federation of Western Europe.

Since the menace of Germany will continue for many generations, England needs the help of France, her closest friendly neighbor, for years to come.

FRANCE, I UNDERSTAND, continues to worry about the disposition of New Caledonia. Here is a spot on which the United States has cast an interested eye. (And why not?)

New Caledonia is fabulously rich in almost untouched mineral deposits. One large nickel mine there is largely controlled by British interests. The British are wise investors.

could have told you the same thing. Some of the Frenchies are pretty, most of them are not. The pretty ones are monopolized by the Frenchmen themselves or by high officers. G. I. Joe has little chance even if he is so inclined. And he probably isn't. The girls back home fill the minds of the fighting men. Most of the boys would rather just catch a glimpse of an American girl than spend an evening with an European belle.

TO GEORGE D. McDOWELL, JR.

SOLDIER: Congratulations on your inclusion among 21 Ohio students who have won scholarships at Ohio State university. Your leadership in state-wide tests given high school seniors last year by the state department of education is an accomplishment of which you always may be proud. One day the war will end and then your reward will be waiting for you.

CIRCUITEER

TO BOYS AND GIRLS

YOUNGSTERS: Harvest of milkweed pods is under way and Uncle Sam needs them. He is asking that you aid in the gathering and is offering pay for your cooperation. Gather every pod you see and turn all of them in at your school. You will be helping the fighting men a lot by your effort, and that fact should give you much pleasure.

CIRCUITEER

TO OUR FIGHTING MEN

AXIS BUSTERS: Ohio's election this Fall will be so close, according to present indications, that the votes of some 250,000 Ohioans in service may decide the election. That, probably, is as it should be all over the land. You have saved this nation from the Axis and yours should be the most important voice in the nation. In Ohio, at least, it may well be this Fall. Speak your piece by way of the ballot. For one I am delighted that the Ohio decision may be a fighting man's decision.

TO THE TIGERS

GRIDDERS: Looks as though you have a fairly easy victory in store for Friday night, but you rate a let-up from the type of competition you had in the first two games of the season. While we all are expecting that Roseville will not be too difficult we will be out there rooting for you and looking for the improvement necessary to victory farther along in the schedule.

CIRCUITEER

TO BIKE RIDERS

PEDDLERS: Sale of bicycle licenses that usually starts in April is now under way and unless you enjoy a summons to City Hall you should buy your tag at once. Since the start of the sale is very late it is not likely that many excuses for absence of tags will be accepted. Be on the safe side and buy at once.

TO JAYCEES

GENTLEMEN: Thanks for your vote to sponsor a Boy Scout troop. The undertaking is worthy of your organization. In Bob Dean as scoutmaster you have a youth leader who undoubtedly will make the troop one of the outstanding units in the county.

The Study of Drugs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

WHEN THE doctor gives you some medicine he rather expects to have you ask him some questions. He expects it because it is perfectly natural and he has been up against it before. Not only are the questions perfectly natural, but you entirely deserve an answer to them. You want to know what this medicine is supposed to do? How soon it begins to act? How long will the effect last? When should another dose be given? Will it produce any queer effects?

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

These questions can be answered for any drug used by the medical profession, but what I want my readers to stop and think about a minute is how were they answered?

The answer shows what progress medical science has made in this particular field. We have just had a valuable new drug introduced into practice—demerol—and reviewing the preparations and precautions that were observed in making it available point up the enormous advance that has been made in this field of the study of drugs over the way drugs used to be used.

Original Substances

In old days the substances that were used for medical purposes were mostly plants, minerals, rocks and parts of animals (powdered newt eyes, etc.). Their employment was based on a kind of vague reputation. Uncle Henry has the colic and if we could only get him some black sassafras leaves he would recover, because that is what cured old Lady Gubbenfelder two years ago.

When the leaves of foxglove (digitalis) were introduced into medicine for the cure of dropsy they were found in the prescriptions of an old herb woman who had 20 other kinds of roots and leaves in her concoction. Dr. William Withering, of Birmingham, initiated scientific pharmacology by his study of whether the leaves, the flowers or the root of foxglove was most active. He decided on the leaves. Then, trying it out on patients, he showed how much by weight of the leaves were necessary to obtain his effects. And by what changes in the pulse, etc., the patients were relieved.

Methods Used

Such experimental methods are always used in our day before giving new drugs to the public. Take the new drug, demerol. It is used for pain. We never have enough good drugs to counteract pain. It has been known for a long time that in some kinds of pain a combination of atropine and morphine works better than morphine alone. Atropine quiets the contraction of the smooth muscles of the intestines and the bronchi, and the kidney pelvis, so it can be seen that when pain is due to colic of these muscles atropine would reinforce morphine which quiets pain by deadening the receiving centers in the brain and central nervous system.

So instead of going out in the fields and endlessly trying to find some plant which would combine these virtues, some organic chemists just juggled atoms around until they had synthesized a substance which resembled the structure of both atropine and morphine. The chemists determined also its solubility in water and in human saliva and stomach juices. They found it can be given either by mouth or by hypodermic.

Then the pharmacologists determined its poisonous dosage, and proper dosage by experiments on animals. They found it begins to act in about twenty minutes.

Then the physicians tried it out. I have a report showing how it affected 123 patients suffering from arthritis, gallstones, kidney stones, headache, angina and other kinds of pain.

We conclude it is a very valuable drug.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

MR. THATCHER was very proud of his rose garden. He lived in a small white house overlooking Town creek, which was the most sheltered bit of water that surrounded Talbot almost on all sides. The boatyards were on Town creek and from Mr. Thatcher's front porch one could see most of the activity of the town. But the man seldom sat there. His real interest in life was his roses, and they were at the back of the house.

Everyone knew Mr. Thatcher and his roses, though he lived very quietly with his mother and certainly made no ostentatious display of his really beautiful flowers. Indeed, his rose garden lay modestly in back of his house and was shut off from the street by an enormous privet hedge. It was not from any selfish feeling, however. There was a wicket gate, and if you stepped up to it you not only could see the rose garden, but if Mr. Thatcher were there, and he usually was for three seasons of the year, you were most cordially invited in.

Mrs. Bancroft had told Anne so, and even offered to telephone Mr. Thatcher, but Anne didn't want to trouble anyone. The days at the inn had slipped away. The place now was crowded and Anne knew it was time for her to slip away, too. This feeling was strong in her mind on the Fourth of July. All the town seemed to be up on the Strand to watch the sailing races. The porch had been crowded with visitors. She came to the back streets where it was more peaceful.

She had written to Miss Jurgas at the hospital, and this morning a telegram had come telling her to come back for duty as soon as possible. She had been hurt, had tried to run away and build up a new life for herself and had failed. She had no more money and there had been nothing to do but go back to her old work. Being a nurse had once seemed all-important, and she had been a good nurse. Dr. Raynor had ended that period of her life. He had swept her off her feet as he might have done any young girl. He had been a romantic dream come true. Perhaps Miss Jurgas in her quiet way understood all that. So she had said come back. She hadn't waited to write, but had telegraphed.

Anne felt she could look at roses. She leaned on the wicket gate and at first didn't see the man smiling at her. He made a welcoming gesture with his pruning shears. The sunlight flashed as they moved. He called out:

"Come in! Come in!" She hesitated and he came to open the gate for her. "I'm afraid I'm intruding," she said, "but since I'm going away . . ."

Her voice trailed off. Mr. Thatcher shook his head. "I thought you were staying with us all summer. Miss Withers told Mother only last night that she was sure you were."

Anne bent over a big red rose to smell it before answering. "I think Miss Withers jumps to conclusions sometimes."

He chuckled. "Don't dislike her. She's a good soul at heart. And she likes you."

"Me? Why should she?" He pushed back the light hat he wore with a green visor which threw a strange shadow over his eyes. "Miss Withers is a good woman, my mother says, and has a strange code. She only talks about people she likes."

"I suppose that means she's been talking about me."

"When you live in Talbot a while longer you'll not be content with life unless Miss Withers is talking about you a little. We have no newspaper here. Weston has a weekly and some of us get Baltimore papers and some Philadelphia. They don't tell us anything about our little world. And it is a little world all of its own. Miss Withers does tell us things."

"I suppose every town has a gossip."

"What is gossip?" He stopped to snip a rose which had passed its prime. "I've been hoping you'd come see my roses. I've wanted to talk to you. I've seen you about and I've been tempted to go up to see you and hold out my hand and say, 'Let's be friends. I'm John Thatcher and I know you're Anne Wilson.'"

She laughed and held out her hand. "I wish you'd done it long ago."

He shook hands gravely. "How do you do, Miss Wilson. But my point is, why did I want to know you? You're very pretty, but that would only make me say to myself that I was an old enough fool to have a little sense. But Miss Withers made you a real person with her talk. By the way, she is usually the friend of the stranger in town."

There was a large platform in the center of the garden with a tall, cool root and no walls, like a Samoan house. There were easy chairs and a table on a good rug. Anne sat down at his invitation and looked about as he talked about the different roses which he raised so carefully. There were no other flowers. For him there were no others in the world. He pointed out the "hospital bed" where the bushes received special attention when they needed it. She smiled at last.

"I should have come here before."

"You can come again. The gate opens easily from the outside."

"You're very kind. But I won't be here. I'm going back to New York tomorrow."

He looked at her with steady eyes behind the heavy glasses. "Do you think you ought to go back? I don't look cross, because I didn't mean to be fresh. You see, I've found a real haven here and I think others have, too. It's a little world away from the big world which hasn't been kind to us. Did you know that the name of the river, Tred Avon, really means Third Haven? Some try to say it means Thred Haven because the ships brought supplies here from England during Colonial days. But I like Third Haven better. The third haven or harbor coming up from the entrance of Chesapeake bay. And a haven for people, too."

She was touched by the sincerity of his tone. "I think you love this place."

"I do." He drew a deep breath, inhaling the intoxicating fragrance of his roses. "You'll love it, too, if you'll only stay. There's peace here. Peace. It's a big word now when there's so little of it left in the world."

Anne nodded. "It seemed that way for a while. But I lost my job. You know that. I must earn my living. A girl must work to get along."

"There are all kinds of work. Some girls get married." He smiled disarmingly. "You must think I'm terribly fresh, but I've been thinking about you. A bit of gossip reached me. One night you and Dan Smith sat on his porch for several hours. Then you had dinner with him. I was told you looked like a happy couple if there ever was one. My informant, whose name I won't mention, said she hoped you two really would settle down and . . ."

Hints on Etiquette

In planning a wedding anniversary party, usually members of both families should be invited. Of course if there is a breach of some kind, it is not necessary to include those who are at odds with the rest, but family disagreements should be avoided as much as possible by both sides.

"The Authority on Authorities"

PUNCH IS NECESSARY

A BOXER with fair defense, but who couldn't punch, would be comparable to a No Trump declarer who had stoppers in every suit, but such a misfit with his partner's hand that he couldn't score his partner's tricks. Getting into a No Trump contract when you have a singleton in your partner's suit is pretty bad, because you can lead only once toward it, but having an absolute blank in the suit is worse and more of it.

After the disaster on this deal, North complained that South should have taken out into 3-Spades, with his strong six-card suit, but he was dead wrong. South's suit, appearing solid to him, was fine No Trump material, and that worthy had no way of knowing what a crazy-quilt North had, let alone dream that North did not even have a singleton to lead into the big suit.

East led his heart 6 to the K, scored his Q and A on the return and then led the 6 to North's J to clear the suit. The declarer, trying a long-chance to get into the dummy, led his diamond 3 toward the K, but what a fool East would have been to lay off with the A. He took it, cashed the heart 7 to complete his side's book, then led the club 2 to the A for the setting trick.

North took the club return with the K, brought in the diamond Q, but then had nothing left except diamonds. He led one for East to take the J and 10, and East had to offer a spade then to give the dummy the last two tricks. It was down three, or 800 points, whereas if North had possessed sense enough to pass the 2-Spades, despite his stoppers in the other suits, the contract could have been set only one trick.

What defensive danger does West risk in leading against 4-Hearts here, and what smooth work must North do to make 3-No Trumps if East leads the spade J?

WEATHER MAY DECIDE AL RACE

Doubleheaders Are Set For Today After Rain Visits Detroit, St. Louis

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The weather man never was eyed so keenly during a pennant fight as he is being ogled today in St. Louis and Detroit.

With the Tigers-Senators game in Detroit and the Yankees-Browns battle in St. Louis washed out Thursday with the rest of the American League slate, doubleheaders among the fighting teams were necessitated today and, if played, will just about decide the hot American league pennant race. Should these and the rest of the remaining crucial games be washed out, the Tigers will be-beat into the pennant by one game.

MUGGS McGINNIS

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Louis Vettes, well-known writer in the mystery comedy field ("Mr. and Mrs. North" and "Thin Man"), trusts no murder plot to his own judgment alone. He calls in several friends, reads them everything up to the solution—if they can guess the guilty man, he chuckles the entire thing and starts over again. He's at present hard at work on a new mystery drama, "Two on a Clue," something new that invades the daytime field Monday.

The only permanent character on the "Stage Door Canteen" program is a comical fellow named Werrenrath X. Werrenrath (The X stands for his middle initial which varies with each broadcast.) The character, who speaks in a high-pitched comic voice, is played by versatile Ward Wilson, the smooth-voiced announcer of the Kate Smith show. In addition, Ward handles acting and announcing chores on 32 network programs.

Remember Herbert Rawlinson, one of the biggest names in the silent films? Well, he still has all his old acting ability and has turned to radio. You can hear him currently in "Star Playhouse" week-day dramatization of "Now Voyager."

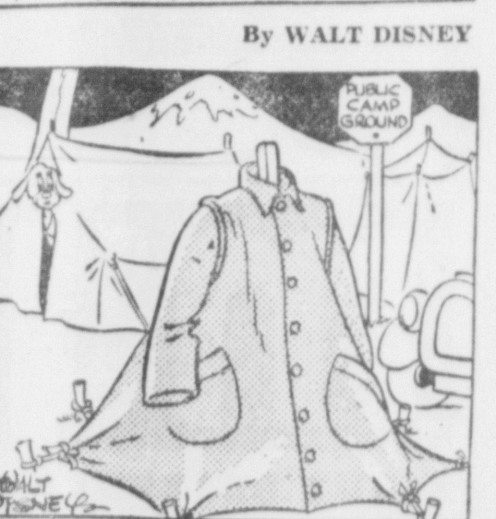

Bob Hawk, quipmaster of "Thanks to the Yanks," is working on a pamphlet of quiz questions which he is sending personally to service camps throughout the world to be used by the boys in informal quiz programs.

Martha Tilton, just back from an overseas jaunt, will be Andy Devine's guest on "Melody Round-Up" Saturday.

Soldier Christmas Gift Business Rushing At Postoffice

SOME CITIZENS FAIL TO HEED MAILING RULES

Improper Addresses And Too Much Weight Result In Confusion, Delay

Business is rushing at the Circleville post office as Pickaway countians send Christmas gifts to service men and women overseas but Postmaster A. Hulse says Friday expressed the fear many in service would not receive packages while other presents will prove unsatisfactory to their receivers.

Mr. Hulse said that many packages have been delayed because they were overweight. Several have been received at the post office which weigh six pounds, five and a half, six and a half, etc. These are given back to the sender, who must repack them because the limit of each package is five pounds.

Other packages are not addressed correctly and some are not packed in strong enough boxes. Many contain items which will be damaged in transit to the distant theatres of war, Mr. Hulse said.

Two Weeks Left
Only about two more weeks remain to mail overseas gifts, Mr. Hulse reminded senders, and urged all to prepare their packages in line with postal regulations so that those in service will receive them on time.

He issued this list of do's and don'ts to those mailing gift packages: Don't send chocolates, cigars, cameras, electric equipment, food (unless it is packed in tin), clothes (unless requested), liquor and avoid items sold in ship's services. Do send knives, books (pocket size), fountain pens, sun glasses, steel mirrors, insect repellents, coat hangers, alarm clocks, wash cloths, small family snapshots, dice, playing cards, poker chips, moccasin type bedroom slippers, toilet kits, airmail stationery, pencil sharpeners, small home made personal things, pipes or favorite tobacco mixes, fruit cakes, foot powder and shaving kits.

Use of V-Mail
Mr. Hulse also called attention to the fact that many people are using V-mail incorrectly. He stated that many enclose pictures, money or news clippings in V-mail letters, against regulations. He said that no enclosures in V-mail letters are permitted. Letters also should be addressed in black ink only, "the blacker the better," he stated.

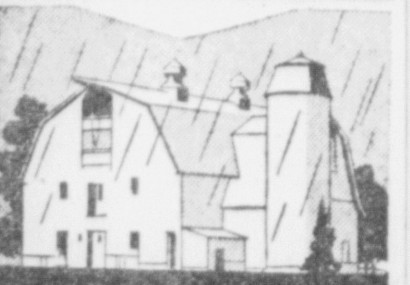

Letters to service men also quite often are delayed because of lack of or not enough postage, he said. Every day a few letters are returned to the senders for postage while others are held because the sender fails to put on a return address. This results in several days' delay of mail which men overseas are anxiously awaiting, he pointed out.

PREPAREDNESS

ERIE—A special type of valve oil which he invented 20 years ago has enabled Frank J. Tate's garage business to weather the war crisis which has forced so many of his fellow garage men to close shop for the duration. His invention, Tate claims, has helped keep his own car, a 16-year-old model, on the road through 305,000 miles of service.
